INDICATIONS—For Kentucky, fair, warmer; southwesterly winds.

THE Frankfort lottery is no more. The lawless business has disgraced the State long enough, and good people everywhere rejoice that the courts have at last closed the "policy" shops.

LEXINGTON citizens will petition Congress to establish the new U. S. Court at that place if Kentucky should be divided into two districts. Unquestionably Lexington is the natural location for the court.

The Postmastership.

After spending a day or so here looking over the field, Congressman Pugh, it is said, has decided to leave the selection of the next postmaster to the County Executive Committee. A meeting of the committee will likely be held in the next few days.

A JOYOUS GATHERING.

The Hospitable Home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. Hunter the Scene of a Happy Event New Year's Eve.

On New Year's Eve the home of Mrs. Geo. T. Hunter was the scene of a joyous gathering of young people, the occasion being a dinner given by the Bon Ton Cooking Club. The menu, which was in eight courses, was served by those two accomplished little Misses, Pickett Smith and Bessie Hunter. The menu was as follows:

Oyster soup.
Quail on toast. Croquettes. French peas.
Potatoes in half shell and beaten biscuits.
Chicken salad. Olives. Frozen punch.
Creme de vola.
Brick cream. Cake.
Coffee. Edam cheese. Salted almonds.

After this elaborate spread, the spacious dining room was cleared, and to the sweet strains of Austin's orchestra dancing was indulged in until an early hour in the New Year. May their lives be as happy throughout the year as they were when 1898 was ushered in. Those present were: Misses Nettie Smith, Florence Rogers, Belle Watson, Mattie Wadsworth, Mayme Whitaker, Elizabeth Webb, Wilia Watson, Marie Hunter. Messrs. Edward Fairfax Dulin Moss, C. Marshall, Hall Strode, R. Bissett, J. A. Dodson, J. W. Power, O. S. Hord, Tom Hall, R. A. Wormald, Curtis Williamson, Major Slack, C. T. Lileston, R. Dimmitt, Henry Wadsworth and Ben T. Cox.

BIG FORTUNES MADE.

What Some of the Novelists, Poets and Other Writers Are Paid For Their Work.

[Philadelphia Press.]

Mr. Gladstone's price for a review is $1,000.

Ruskin's sixty-four books bring him in $20,000 a year.

Swinburne, who writes very little, makes $5,000 a year by his poems.

Browning, in his later years, drew $10,000 a year from the sale of his works.

Ian Maclaren made $35,000 out of "The Bonnie Brier Bush" and "Auld Lang Syne."

Zola's first fourteen books returned him $220,000, and in twenty years he has made at least $375,000.

Rider Haggard asks from $75 to $100 a column of 1,500 words, and will not write an article for which less than $10,000 is to be paid.

Mr. Moody is believed to have beaten all others, as more than $1,250,000 has been paid in royalties for the Gospel hymns and tunes issued by him in conjunction with Mr. Sankey.

The Pall Mall Gazette paid Rudyard Kipling $750 for each of his "Barrack-Room Ballads," and "The Seven Seas" brought him $11,000. He has received 50 cents a word for a 10,000 word story.

CINCINNATI TOBACCO MARKET.

A Review of the Past Year—Prices Advanced From 100 to 300 Per Cent. During the Year.

The following statement comes from the Cincinnati Leaf Tobacco Warehouse Company:

"In reviewing the tobacco trade for the past year we are glad to note that the general prosperity of the country has also been an acceptable feature in the leaf tobacco trade, especially during the last half of the year, which has proven very remunerative and satisfactory, a very acceptable change from the beginning of the year, when tobacco was selling below the cost of production, which discouraged the growers and forced them to resort to the sure cure, a curtailing of acreage and the pitching of a small crop."

"This, in connection with a drought in the early part of the season, caused what might be termed a speculator's feast, an advancing market, which commenced early in May and continued gradually until November, when prices on the different grades had advanced from 100 to 300 per cent., giving the country buyers and city speculators large profits on their early purchases."

"The crop of 1896 was not what could be called a good crop. It lacked the substance that is necessary to keep tobacco sweet and hold its flavor. Therefore the best rehandlers had difficulty in keeping up their past reputation for sweet tobacco. The redrying process appeared to leave the tobacco harsh, without that oily substance that is so desirable to the manufacturers. This is caused largely by a wet season while the crop is maturing."

"The crop of 1897 is proving to be one of the best crops grown for years. It contains all the requirements necessary to make the manufacturers happy, except the quantity. While the leaf is short it is very fine fibered, full of oil, smooth and of excellent color. The manufacturers are fully aware of its virtues, and are bidding prices that place the new crop, in winter condition, above the old crop in dry condition, and there can be no doubt that the 1897 crop will show an excellent average at the end of the year and compare favorably with some of the high records of the past. It is estimated by the best authorities that the present crop will not exceed 60 per cent. of an ordinary crop, although there is some diversity of opinion, some placing the crop at 70 per cent., while others place it as low as 40 per cent. The marketing of the same will only decide the correct amount."

"The market will open up again on Tuesday, and while it is not probable that the sales will be very large, still we expect a good, high market."

AMENDMENTS

To School Laws Recommended by Superintendents of Kentucky.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 29.—The State Association of County School Superintendents before adjournment to-day adopted a series of resolutions expressing it as their opinion that the school laws were defective, and should be amended as follows:

1. To require the State Superintendent to visit each county at least once during his four-year term.
2. Authorizing the State Superintendent to appoint five professional teachers to act as a State Board of Education.
3. Providing for a $10,000 appropriation for a teacher's training school.
4. Abolition of the district trustee system, and establishing a single governing body for each county.
5. Authorizing the County Fiscal Courts to levy a 25 cent tax for common school purposes.
6. Requiring all school taxes to be collected by the Sheriff of each county.
7. Amending the compulsory education law so as to make it effective.

Supt. Taylor, of Mercer County, moved that the resolutions be amended by adding an indorsement of the anti-book trust bill which will be introduced in the next Legislature, but after some little discussion he announced that he withdrew his motion in the interest of harmony. The six representatives of the book trust had been in constant conference with the delegates since yesterday.

HER TEETH

Fell Out and Her Young Man Never Called Again, So She Got the Damages.

NEW YORK, December 30.—John D. Cook, a Brooklyn dentist, was the defendant in the Broadway Court, Brooklyn, today, before Justice Van Wart, in a suit brought against him by Miss Hannah Hughes for damages resulting from the purchase of a set of misfit false teeth. Miss Hughes testified that Dentist Cook guaranteed the teeth to be a perfect fit, and that she paid him his fee joyfully. When she reached home a gentleman with whom she enjoyed tender relations called to see her. She welcomed him with a smile. The smile caused her teeth to drop and fall at the young man's feet. Miss Hughes picked them up hastily and excused herself for a moment. She put her teeth in again and rejoined her visitor. He was a gentleman, and made no reference to the teeth, but told funny stories to relieve her embarrassment. One of the stories was so amusing that it caused Miss Hughes to laugh merrily. The teeth fell out again and landed in the young man's lap. Shortly after he went away. He has never called again. Miss Hughes also testified that she had another set of teeth which she had worn for years without an accident. Justice Van Wart gave judgment in full, with costs, for the plaintiff, who smiled sweetly on him in thanks and never dropped a tooth. But her young man has never come back to her.
